THREE PRISONERS ESCAPE FROM JAIL

Two White Men and A Negro Held in Bartholomew County Saw Their Way to Liberty.

TWO WERE RECAPTURED

Thomas Washington, Accused of Murder in Greensburg, One of The Trio to Escape.

Local police this morning were asked by the Bartholomew county authorities to watch from two white men and a negro who escaped from the county jail at Columbus Tuesday night. The negro who gained his liberty was Thomas Washington, twenty-eight, colored, accused of the murder of Elmer Robbins, Big Four detective, in Greensburg a few weeks ago. He was arrested in Indianapolis and returned to Greensburg to await trial, but was later taken to Columbus for safe keeping. The two white prisoners who escaped were D. S. Stanley, fifty-six, and A. J. Meyers, thirty-four, both of Indianapolis, who were held awaiting trial for the alleged theft of an automobile in Bartholomew county. John Hancock, colored, who was arrested with Washington for alleged implication in the Robbins murder, and two other prisoners in the jail did not escape and declared that they did not know that the delivery was being planned. Hancock said he would not have escaped if he had found the opportunity as he is not guilty of the Robbins murder and is confident that he will be cleared in the trial.

Stanley and Meyers were recaptured near Helmsburg, Brown county, this afternoon by the Brown county sheriff. Stanley broke away from the sheriff but was later taken into custody again. The men will be returned to Columbus at once. It is believed that Washington started towards Kentucky and all southern routes are being closely guarded. The local police are keeping a close watch on all incoming and outbound trains. It is probably that Washington might have had assistance awaiting him. Stanley and Meyers declared they did not know in what direction Washington had gone when the trio left the jail yard.

The Bartholomew county jail authorities this morning found pieces of six saws which were used by the trio in effecting their escape. They were kept in the corridor of the jail and sawed through the iron bars of the window and then cut a hole in the iron shield over the window. They were in the corridor when the sheriff made his last inspection of the prison quarters for the night, but the three men disappeared before an early hour this morning.

How the prisoners obtained possession of the saws is not known. The officers at Columbus feel certain that the saws were passed through to them from an outside party. It is said that neither Stanley nor Meyers had received any visitors since they were in the jail and the only visitor permitted to see Washington was his wife who called about a week ago.

The work of sawing the window bars was cleverly concealed from the jail attaches. The men must have labored at least a week in cutting the bars, the sheriff believes, taking opportunity to work during the night time.

The Decatur county sheriff went to Columbus this morning to take Washington and Hancock to Greensburg where they were to be given a hearing in circuit court on the charge of murder. He found Washington had gone and did not attempt to take Hancock back with him.

HEARING FIXED ON WATER FRANCHISE

Crothersville Citizens Will Be Given
Opportunity Next Monday to Discuss Grant.

FIRE PROTECTION PROVIDED

Town Board Proposes to Enter Into Contract with Geo. A. Harrop —Schedule of Rates.

The proposal for the construction of a water works plant at Crothersville has reached the point where a public hearing of citizens will be held next Monday night at the office of the town board to discuss the provisions of a tentative franchise tendered by George A. Harrop, of South Bend. The matter of building a water works system in the town has been under consideration for several months and it is understood that the majority of citizens there favor the improvement.

The franchise which is under consideration proposes that the system shall be under the control of the Crothersville Water Company to which corporation the grantee shall transfer his rights. The proposed permit gives the grantee and his assigns the right to construct reservoirs, stand pipes, elevated tanks and buildings for the completion of the system. He is also given permission to use the streets and alleys for mains and pipes. It is provided that the grantee shall begin the construction of the plant within sixty days after the franchise is granted and to have the same completed within nine months from date of commencement of the work.

The rate for domestic and other purposes is fixed in the tentative contract at sixty cents per thousand cubic feet. Only meter service is provided. "The grantee shall install," the franchise states, "for a period of twenty-five years from the dates of this contract, maintain in good condition thirty-five fire hydrants and shall furnish sufficient water to supply the same, for the use of which said town agrees to pay during the same period an annual rental of sixty dollars per hydrant, payable semi-annually in equal installments on the first day of July and the first day of January each year. Additional fire hydrants may be ordered by the town at the same annual rate. The grantee also agrees to furnish one fire hydrant free of cost.

Section thirteen provides that "the grant and privileges herein contained shall be and continue for a term of thirty years from the taking effect of this agreement and no longer unless the said grant shall be renewed by the proper authorities of said town." The last provision specifies that "it is expressly understood and agreed by the parties hereto that this franchise grant in all respects and to all terms and conditions thereof, shall be subject to the authority of the Indiana public service commission."

ROAD LEVIES TO BE MADE IN THE FALL

Township Advisory Boards Are Instructed to Fix Rates at September Meeting.

BASED ON NEW ASSESSMENT

Old Practice of Working Out These Taxes Is Abolished by The New State Tax Measure.

Albert Luedtke, county auditor, is in receipt of a letter from the state board of tax commissioners advising him to notify the township trustees and advisory boards that the levies for township roads are to be made in September instead of June as has been the custom for many years. The tax board explains in its letter that the change is necessary on account of the Beardsley law which provides that hereafter all road taxes must be paid in cash. For many years township residents who preferred were permitted to work out the road taxes assessed against them.

When that practice was permitted the advisory board found it necessary to fix the road levies in June so that the farmers would have ample time to work out the amounts fixed against them. Under the new law the boards are instructed to fix the levies at the same time that the other tax rates are made. The state

That the splendid work of the Jackson County Liberty Loan organization is not only recognized throughout the county but has attracted the attention of many other counties and districts throughout the state is shown in a letter received at the office of the Liberty Loan organization this morning from R. W. Akin, chairman of the first Indiana district to Hon. M. S. Sonntag, chairman of the Eighth Federal Reserve district. Mr. Akin is loud in his praise of L. C. Edgar Rittman a farmer residing west of the sustained painful injuries early this morning when attacked by a sow while in the act of releasing one of her pigs which was caught in a pen. A physician was summoned from this city and several stitches were required in sewing up flesh wounds about the right leg caused by the animal biting him.

Mr. Rittman had a narrow escape from serious injury and had it not been that he was able to get hold of a club with which he stunned the sow and made his escape, it is believed that he would have been badly hurt by the animal. Although quite painful, it is not believed that his injuries will prove serious.

TWO NEW NOTES SENT BY GERMANS

First Two of Seven Communications
Flatly Refused by Allied Delegates.

GERMAN LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Note on Labor Clause May Be Wedge for Continuing the Discussions.

By United Press
Paris, May 14—The "big four" today received three new notes from the German delegates relative to the peace terms. Their nature was not disclosed. Seven communications concerning the treaty have thus been delivered to the allies. The requests contained in the first two were flatly refused. The second two, dealing with labor and German war prisoners were referred to a special committee of experts.

It was believed a reply to the labor note might be made today.

Confidence was expressed in high quarters that notwithstanding the present flood of communications from the Germans they will complete their objection to the terms well within the 15 day time limit and that the allies will have made full reply within another ten days.

The same authority admitted the cleverness of the labor note, which may be used as a wedge for more objections, also as a means of winning the sympathy of certain radical elements throughout the world.

The German plan for a league of nations, which was referred to the allied league commission, sets forth the following principles, it was learned today:

First—Prevention of international disputes.
Second—Universal disarmament.
Third—Freedom of traffic and general equality of economic rights.
Fourth—Protection of national minorities.

Fifth—Creation of an international workers bureau.

Sixth—Regulation of colonial questions.

Seventh—Union of existing and future international institutions.

Eighth—Creation of an international parliament.

The league, under the German plan, would comprise all belligerent states, including those established as a result of the war and neutrals comprising The Hague world arbitration league. New members would be admitted by two thirds vote. Entrance of the Holy See would be held in reserve. The league would be composed of two bodies, a congress of states, and an international parliament.

All secret treaties would be abrogated.

SOCIALIST DEMONSTRATION AGAINST TERMS OF PEACE

Crowd Gathers in Front of Hotel in Berlin Shouting "Down With Americans."

By United Press
Berlin, May 14—Fifteen thousand majority socialists made a demonstration in front of the Hotel Adlon today, crying "Down with Wilson! Down with the Americans!"

The demonstration grew in front of the American headquarters until fifty soldiers arrived and cleared the streets. The crowd had gathered for the demonstration against the peace terms. They were addressed by Richard Fischer, who said the confidence of the Germans in President Wilson had been abused and the government would refuse to sign the treaty. The demonstrators surged towards the Hotel Adlon, jeering and shouting "robbers."

Chancellor Scheidemann later addressed a large crowd in front of the reichstag.

BECLUDING THE ISSUE.

The whine which some of the German government leaders made over the terms of peace has developed into a loud wail and howl. The disappointment of some of the diplomats is even manifesting itself in the form of bitter attacks against the associated powers. The whole trouble with the German leaders is that they forget that Germany is now being punished for the wrongs she has done the world. They are insisting that Germany be dealt with the same as would be done in normal times.

The German public has been fed on propaganda of the rankest kind. The Germans are students of propaganda and they resort to it on all occasions. The public has been led to believe that the terms would be most lenient and that Germany would be received with open arms by the nations she had wronged. When Germany is made to see that she is reaping the harvest of her own wrongs then will she be content to accept the peace terms.

It is folly for Germany to talk about membership in the league of nations until she has proved her character for honesty and integrity. Germany today stands as an outcast among nations. When she can again be received in the society of civilization depends upon her own actions. Her present course does not indicate that her reception will be in the very near future. If some misguided diplomat or set of diplomats in Germany is able to prevent the signing of the peace treaty, Germany will come face to face with a degree of punishment that will awaken the people to the realization that the present proffer of settlement is lenient and just and they will be quick to accept the allies' terms.

FUTURE OF CITY.

There has never been a time when Seymour faced such bright prospects for progress and advancement as at present. The growth of a city depends entirely upon the co-operation of its citizens. A city can be no larger than its citizens make it. The development of a city depends upon the vision and activity of the people who compose it.

Recently the chamber of commerce was organized on a broader plan than has ever before been attempted. All activities and occupations are represented. This plan was adopted so that Seymour would become a city for the welfare of all of its population. It promotes co-operation and unified action. The chamber of commerce is making rapid progress, but more complete support is needed if the achievement of its ultimate program is gained.

The newest organization which has for its aim the advancement of the city is the Rotary Club. This organization is based upon the broad principles of fairness and justice. It recognizes the value of co-operation and its officers have pledged themselves ready to work in conjunction with the chamber of commerce on any worthy and commendable move that is undertaken. The chamber of commerce with the same degree of co-operation is ready to join with the Rotary Club in any of its endeavors. With these two organizations working for the same ends, the city ought to show a remarkable development during the next few years. Both organizations have their individual places. One will not supplant the other. Both can work together giving added impetus to the progress that has already been made.

MANY SAVED BY "CANNED BLOOD"

One of the Remarkable Developments of Great War.

IS TRIUMPH OF SURGERY

Knowledge Gained by Experience in Other Wars the Basis of Its Use—Work of Medical Men After Battles Shows Wonderful Advance Made in Science—American Army Surgeons Keep Up With Pace.

The war department authorizes the following statement from the office of the surgeon general:

One of the remarkable developments of war surgery was the use made in the American expeditionary force of "canned blood." The lives of many wounded soldiers were saved through transfusion of blood. "Canned blood" is a colloquialism, for in reality sterile flasks were used to contain tested bloods which were prepared for use in an emergency.

A few years ago treatment by this method would have seemed incredible. Due to the advancement of war surgery, however, many things became possible, and American army surgeons kept the pace. The unadorned story of the development and technique of blood transfusion in the American expeditionary force comes from a medical corps officer of the surgeon general's office, who, for more than a year, was with the American expeditionary force.

Knowledge gained by experience in other wars has shown that of the many causes of death among wounded soldiers there are two which have stood out prominently as heavy factors: Shock and hemorrhage. Shock is a peculiar phenomenon, the exact nature of which has been a mystery. Since the beginning of the war, however, there has been a concentration of effort to solve this mystery, and now, although the true physiological mechanism in the production of shock is not entirely solved, the scientific workers of the allied countries and the United States have gone far in their efforts toward a better understanding of it.

Shock and Hemorrhage.

Shock is characterized principally by loss of body heat, prostration and unconsciousness, a lowered blood pressure and an alteration in the circulation—a stagnation of blood somewhere in the body, most probably in the capillaries. As a matter of fact, for some time medical men have spoken of shock as a condition in which an individual bleeds into his own blood vessels; and, in the sense that there is a loss of blood from the circulation, an analogy does exist between shock and hemorrhage. It has been shown that there are certain predisposing factors in the production of shock, namely, fatigue, hunger, exposure and excitement. Little need be said about the cause of hemorrhage, because every one knows that when wounds are inflicted, bleeding occurs.

Concerning treatment, it is of interest to know that the transfusion of blood is by no means a modern idea, for it was resorted to as early as the fifteenth century. At that time, however, and until very recently, it was a procedure attended with the probability of grave results. Hence it really is perfection of the technique that has made the procedure available for sure and easy use in the army and elsewhere.

For the use of the army medical science offered several different methods of performing a blood transfusion. By the old method, called the "direct," the blood vessels of two individuals are connected by sutures and the blood is allowed to flow from one individual to another. This was improved upon by the use of a specially devised tube to connect the vessels. Any such method, however, has many obvious disadvantages. The element of time, the necessity for great skill on the part of the operators, the possibility of infection and inaccuracy in measuring the quantity infused are some of the prominent difficulties. As a matter of fact, in civil practice, wherein a great deal of blood transfusion work is done, those methods are practically obsolete.

Indirect Methods.

The big step in the development of the procedure for common use came with the introduction of the "indirect" methods. In these, blood from one individual is received in a receptacle and then injected into another individual. The person giving the blood, it may be well to state here, is always called "the donor" and the person receiving it "the recipient."

In these indirect methods a very important consideration is the prevention of coagulation of the blood between the time it is drawn from the "donor" and the time it is infused into "the recipient."

In civil medical practice some men use what is called the "syringe method," in which the blood is removed and injected by means of glass syringes. This procedure requires three persons in order to carry on one transfusion and depends upon the quickness with which they work to avoid the possibility of coagulation of the blood. If pieces of coagulated blood should happen to be injected into any individual, some small vessel in the body probably would become plugged, the damage resulting therefrom depending upon the location of the obstructed artery. Another method eliminates the possibility of coagulation by receiving the blood of "the donor" in a solution of some substance known to prevent coagulation.

With the foregoing facts in view, the medical men who were with the American expeditionary forces decided that whatever method was adopted it would have to be one as simple as might be and which could be taught and learned in a very short time, yet one as faultless as possible. The indirect method, using sodium citrate to prevent coagulation, was decided upon. Also a type of apparatus was devised to serve as a model for the standard outfit. This apparatus was made of glass bottles, glass tubing, rubber stoppers and rubber tubing. Very little skilled work was required in preparing a large number of the sets. At the central medical laboratory the outfits were prepared and put up in carrying cases. Every officer who took the course of instruction there was sent out with a set ready for use. In blood transfusion, besides the danger of coagulation, there are other equally important conditions that may be harmful and must be taken into consideration. Of these, two are of principal importance.

First, there is the danger of the transmission of disease through the medium of the transfused blood. An individual who is suffering from such a disease, of which malaria and syphilis are examples, must never be used as a donor.

Second, there is the possible biological incompatibility between two bloods.

How It Is Done.

In order to see the machinery in operation, let us say that a man in a condition of shock is brought into an evacuation hospital near the battle line. He is unconscious, cold, has a low blood pressure, and has suffered considerable blood loss before the flow had been stopped at the advance post. He is put in a special shock ward and on a special shock bed. The ward is warm, quiet, restful and well ventilated. As for the bed, that accentuates these conditions. Over it is extended a frame supporting the bedclothes in a manner that reminds one of a prairie schooner. An alcohol stove, placed upon the floor at the foot of the bed, delivers the heat into the "schooner" by means of a conducting pipe and a fenestra. The man lies under the covers with only his face exposed. It is deemed best to perform a blood transfusion upon the patient. A few drops of his blood are procured, and, by means of known serums, the blood group to which he belongs is determined. A glance at the list of donors and one is chosen who belongs to the same group. Blood is drawn from the donor into a receptacle containing sterile sodium citrate in the right proportion and this blood is injected into the wounded man.

To depart from the specific example, occasionally the blood was stored on ice for several days and then used, perhaps at the firing line. Such cases were relatively few, however. More often, if donors for almost immediate use could not be procured or were not to be had in sufficient number, a condition that arises during big attacks, certain fluid substitutes for blood were employed. As in the case of anticoagulants, there are many such fluids. Of course any blood substitute must be harmless to tissues and red cells alike. The old standard fluid substitute, which met these requirements, was sterile normal salt solution, and, although the immediate effect of intravenous saline is equivalent sometimes to even blood transfusion, the benefit is usually lost in a short time and an opposite, deleterious effect is produced. This result, it was found, could be avoided and a relatively permanent effect secured by the use of a fluid of the same physical properties as blood.

The Manufacturing Facilities of The Standard Oil Company (Indiana)

UNDERLYING the manufacturing activities of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), are the same high ideals of service; the same thoughtful consideration of detail; the same earnest desire to do a big job thoroughly and well, which animates the Company in every other branch of its business.

Every facility which wide experience, resources, and the utmost skill of specially trained technicians can devise or suggest, is provided to insure absolute uniformity and the highest standard of quality in each of the many products manufactured by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

The manufacturing facilities of the Company are concentrated in three great refineries, one located at Whiting, Ind., covering 700 acres; one at Wood River, Ill., covering 600 acres; and one at Sugar Creek, Mo., covering 200 acres of ground.

The Whiting works is conceded to be the most complete, the most perfectly organized oil refinery in the world. Here practically every product of petroleum is manufactured, and here are located the great research laboratories where the problems of manufacture are worked out and solved.

The plants at Wood River and Sugar Creek are modern in every particular and so organized as to use every part of the crude oil. This enables the Company to keep manufacturing costs at a minimum and to supply its patrons with products of the highest standard at prices which otherwise would be impossible.

The 7,000 earnest, industrious, well-paid men and women who make up the personnel of these three refineries, constitute, we believe, the most loyal, the most enthusiastic, most efficient, industrial army to be found anywhere.

The facilities alone for manufacture maintained by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) represent an investment of approximately $60,000,000. This investment is growing constantly to enable the Company to maintain the high standard of service it has set for itself and which it believes the public is entitled to receive.

board of tax commissioners call attention to the fact that the rate of thirty cents, on the $100 for this purchase is based on the old law and that the levy must be reduced in proportion to the increase in the appraisements. The board reserves the right to change or modify any levies, the matter to be given consideration at the September meeting.

The letter received by Auditor Luedtke from the state board relative to this matter follows:

Questions have been asked as to the necessity of making the road tax levy, on or before the first Tuesday in June, of not more than 30 cents on each $100 worth of property, as provided by Sec. 7777. Burns R. S. 1914, and as amended by Acts 1919, page 321. The object of the law as amended is to do away with the practice of working out the road tax and compelling its payment in cash, thus doing away with the necessity of making the levy in June, and this levy can therefore be made in September when all the other levies are made.

It should be understood that the road tax levy of 30 cents will be considered based on the old assessment, and as the new assessments go up this rate must go down along with all other rates. This board will have the right to review and finally determine all levies at its fourth session, beginning the third Monday in September, and will have the right to reduce the road tax levy, or any other levy made, when it is shown that levies made will raise more money than the needs of government, economically administered, warrant.

Please convey this information to the trustees and advisory boards in your county.

URGE BUILDINGS FOR MEMORIALS

Practical Tribute to Heroes of the Great War.

LIBERTY BONDS TO PAY PRICE

National Bureau of Education Suggests Community Buildings Dedicated to Civic and Social Uses as Constant Reminder of Sacrifices Made by Soldiers and Sailors—Many Communities Favor the Idea.

Soldiers' memorials in the form of community buildings, dedicated to civic and social uses, and, wherever possible, built with bonds of the fifth Liberty loan, are urged by the bureau of education, department of the interior, in a circular sent to every school community in the United States.

A number of communities have already concluded that a building, in constant use as a reminder of the sacrifice made by the soldiers and sailors of the great war, is more appropriate and enduring than the conventional grave-yard monument. "There is a growing conviction," says Dr. Henry E. Jackson, author of the bureau's circular, "that the conventional stone shaft, placed in a grave-yard among the dead, is not a fitting memorial to those who died for freedom. The suggestion, made both in France and America, that these memorials take the form of community buildings, dedicated to civic and social uses, is obviously wise and ought to meet universal approval. On the walls of such a building should hang a bronze tablet containing the names of each community's martyrs to liberty.

The Roll of Honor.

"This type of memorial will guarantee that no boy who gave his life for justice and freedom will be forgotten. The number of American lives lost in this war is very small in comparison to those lost in the Civil war. If a community lost only three or four, it might not think it worth while to build a monument. But a community building is needed entirely apart from its memorial purpose. The chief advantage of this type of memorial, however, is not that it is economical, but that it keeps green an inspiring memory, and it seeks to put into operation, through its civic and social activities, the ideals for which our boys fought in France.

"Funds for this purpose could be raised more easily if they were raised in the form of Liberty bonds during the fifth loan, which is to come in the spring. The bonds can be used as money when the time comes to build. Thus a community can serve itself, while, at the same time, it is rendering a national service. By this method more money for the government could be raised than by any other. Not only would many individuals gladly contribute an extra bond or two for the benefit of their local community, but many who are unable to do this could pool their small gifts and contribute to a bond. Likewise, entertainments and social activities can be utilized to raise money for the same purpose. Opportunity should be given for as many as possible to have a part in the enterprise. For men to contribute outright a few Liberty bonds to a local community cause will help to dispel the delusion that a man is doing anything especially generous when he puts his money into an investment which offers the best security in the world and a fair rate of interest. To couple the fifth loan with free gifts and soldiers' memorials will make it in a real sense a Victory loan. It will be much more than this. It will be a reconstruction loan.

Should Be the School.

"Wherever possible this community memorial building ought to be the public schoolhouse, in order to prevent needless waste through duplication. It is the logical community center. It is nonpartisan, nonsectarian and non-exclusive. It is owned and operated by all the people and therefore furnishes a platform on which all can meet on terms of self-respect. The schoolhouse could be remodeled or enlarged or replaced by a new one. It is the natural capitol and clubhouse of every community. In rural districts small schools should of course be consolidated in order to eliminate a waste and secure a community large enough to support the kind of building here proposed.

"The clubhouse ought to be used for this purpose wherever possible. If in any place the school officials are unprogressive and unawake to their opportunity, then an independent building ought to be erected. Institutions are made for the people, not the people for institutions. Let us use whatever means are available for our purpose. But there is no need for any community to submit to a backward-looking board of school directors. The schools belong to the people and it is their privilege to compel school officials to be their public servants and execute their will."

In his foreword to the bureau's circular, Commissioner Claxton states that the bureau of education will gladly join with other agencies in stimulating the erection of memorials of this kind to American soldiers and sailors.

William Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Hill, Jonesville, who has been in overseas service, received his discharge at Camp Taylor Tuesday.

THE FRIENDLY TOBACCO

THERE may be some things that can be done well in a hurry, but pickin' a wife an' agein' a tobacco ain't amongst 'em.

Velvet Joe.

We put away millions of pounds of fine Kentucky Burley tobacco every year, stored in wooden hogsheads. It ripens two years. When we take it out it's different—Nature has improved it, good as it was—made it friendlier, more fragrant, cool-smoking, long-burning.

Nature has given it a delicious quality of mildness and fragrance that no artificial means can ever equal.

It's just that extra touch of friendly goodness that is building up VELVET Tobacco into the favor and good will of thousands of pipe smokers who prefer to smoke tobacco cured in Nature's way.

You would notice the difference.

REASONABLE EXCUSE

Former Local Man Preferred Fishing to Jury Service.

The following dispatch appeared in the Indianapolis News Tuesday under an Enid, Okla., date line:

"Your honor, can't serve on the jury," said George Seifres.

"Only a legitimate excuse goes," said Judge Roberts.

"I'm going fishing."

The judge pondered a moment—

"I'll go with you."

Seifres was formerly a merchant at Tampico, but some years ago moved to Enid. He engaged in the mercantile business there for several years and was later elected to county office. He has been prominent in public affairs at Enid.

Gold Mine Association.

The Gold Mine Association held their regular meeting at the Gold Mine store Tuesday evening. Following the regular business session N. Kaufman addressed the members on "Store Efficiency" which was greatly appreciated. The association adjourned to meet again the first Thursday evening in June. W. H. Hughes was elected press correspondent.

Troop No. 2 met last night at the Baptist church. Six applications for membership were filed and two were received last night being Glenn Beatty and Kenneth Gossett. The troop made plans for holding an ice cream social next Tuesday night on the church lawn the proceeds of which will go into the "Summer Camp Fund." Rev. T. C. Smith, of Wolcott, Ind., was the guest of honor at the meeting and spoke to the boys.

Mark Storen, United States marshal, was in the city this morning serving papers on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad company in a damage suit case which has been filed against the company in Federal court. Mr. Storen spent a few hours at Scottsburg with relatives before returning to Indianapolis.

Notice of Meeting of Jackson County Board of Review.

Notice is hereby given that the county board of review of Jackson County, State of Indiana, will meet at 10 o'clock a. m., on Monday, June 2, 1919, the same being the first Monday in June of said year, in the court house of said Jackson County, State of Indiana, for the purpose of reviewing all assessments and of inquiring as to the valuation of the various classes of property in the respective townships and divisions of the county, and to make such changes in the assessments, whether by way of increase or decrease in such valuation of such various classes of property, as may be necessary to equalize the same in or between the townships or divisions of townships, or any taxing unit, and to determine the rate per cent to be added or deducted in order to make a just and equitable equalization in the respective townships and divisions so as to conform throughout the county to a just and equitable standard, reference to be had to the natural and artificial characteristics and surroundings, and other elements of value.

Such board will also in proper cases, reduce or increase the valuation in the assessments of any particular tract or lot. Such board will consider lands, town lots and city lots as separate classes, if necessary, for the purpose of equalization, and determine a per cent. of addition or reduction for such or any of said classes within the respective townships or divisions of townships, or any taxing unit, as between the several townships or other divisions of townships or taxing units.

All of this to be done to equalize the valuation of property and taxables returned by the assessor and made subsequent to March 1, 1919, and to correct any list of valuation as it may deem proper, either by adding to or deducting from, such sums as are necessary to fix the assessment at the full, true cash value and in all cases when the board of review deems it necessary to add omitted property or to increase the valuation returned by the assessors, to correct errors in the names of persons in the descriptions of property upon the assessment list and in assessment and valuation of property thereon, and shall cause to be done whatever else may be necessary to make the list and returns of assessment comply with the provisions of an act of the general assembly of the State of Indiana, entitled "An Act Concerning Taxation, repealing all laws in conflict therewith and declaring an emergency," approved March 11, 1919, and shall pass on each valuation, and may on sufficient cause being shown, or its own motion, correct the assessment of valuation of the various classes of property in such manner as will in its judgment make the valuation thereof just and equal.

Said county board of review at said meeting will assess the capital stock and franchises of all domestic corporations, except such as are valued by the state board of tax commissioners and will consider and act upon all recommendations made by the county assessor.

In witness whereof, I, Albert Luedtke, auditor of Jackson county, State of Indiana, have hereunto affixed my hand and the seal of the board of commissioners of said county this 10th day of May, 1919.

ALBERT LUEDTKE,
Auditor of Jackson County.

HUDSON R. BIERY HAS RESIGNED I. & L. POSITION

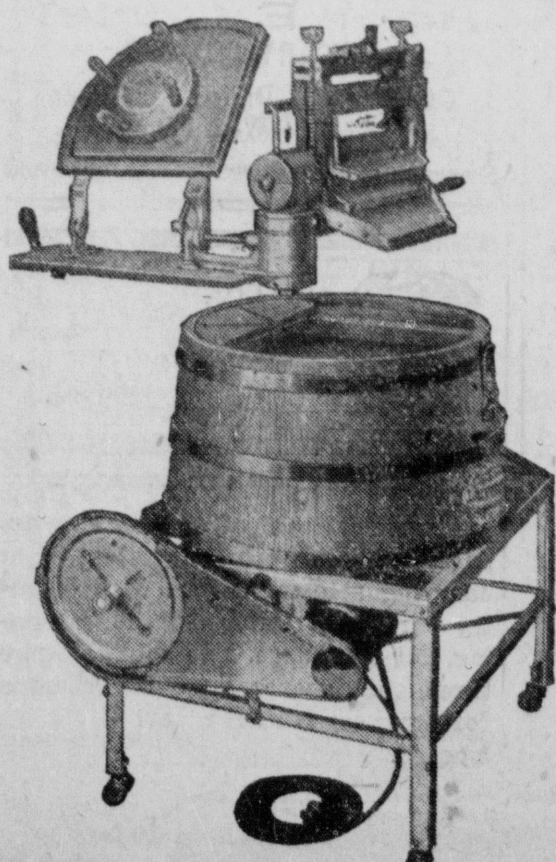

Accepts Place With Union Traction Co. With Headquarters in Anderson.

Hudson R. Biery has accepted a very important position with the Union Traction Company of Indiana, one of the largest interurban lines in the state. His headquarters will be at Anderson, Ind. Mr. Biery has been connected with the I. & L. traction Co. almost since it was built, and has been the right hand man of Col. John Greeley for many years, and for several years has practically had charge of the operation of the road, as assistant general manager. He knows the traction business from the operation to the smallest detail.

His genial disposition, his untiring energy and his sterling honesty and business acumen makes him a most valuable man, and these are the essentials that make for success and is the cause of his receiving such an important position with the Union Traction Co.

We are glad to know that he will not move from Scottsburg, as this is "home" to his mother, and his mother is the first consideration with him—a most commendable attribute in any man.—Scott County Journal.

R. also sent representatives.

The lodges and their representatives are as follows:

The veterans of the World War are invited to participate in the day's services and Lieutenant Carl Switzer has been asked to secure the names of the men who will take part. The uniformed divisions of the various lodges are also invited and will be under the direction of Claude Carter, major of the Seymour battalion. The Boy Scouts will also form a section of the parade.

The marchers will assemble at 1 o'clock, May 30, at the corner of Chestnut and Second streets. The procession will be headed by the Seymour Concert Band followed by the G. A. R. and the Women's Relief Corps. The World War Veterans will come next and will be followed by the Boy Scouts. The uniformed lodge men will form the next division and the members of the various fraternal orders will form the last section. The lodges will not march according to individual membership, but will fall in line four abreast.

The G. A. R. and W. R. C. members will march until they reach the Southeastern tracks on Ewing street where automobiles will be in waiting to carry them to the cemetery. When the Civil War veterans fall out the World War veterans will take their places at the head of the parade. The address of the afternoon will be given by the Rev. Charles W. Whitman, pastor of the First M. E. church.

The lodgemen will also decorate the graves of their departed members during the afternoon. The flowers will be sent to the cemetery during the morning so that the service will not interfere with the Memorial Day program. The G. A. R. will give their ritualistic work following the address by the Rev. Mr. Whitman.

In case of inclement weather the services will be conducted at the Central Christian church and a special committee will be sent to River-view cemetery to decorate the graves of the soldiers and lodgemen.

NIGHT PASSENGERS ARE ENTERTAINED WITH RATS

Women Keep Eyes Open for Most Detested Animal To the "Fair Sex."

Some rats have been making their appearance at the Baltimore & Ohio ladies' waiting room for the past few nights which have caused no unlimited amount of fright to members of the "fair sex" who have been compelled to wait there for trains. Last night while several women were waiting for train No. 3 due here at midnight, a large rat came out of its hole which caused considerable excitement when discovered and it would be hard to determine who was the most frightened, the rodent or the women. Anyway, the rat went back in its hole and the women sat with their feet in their seats for fear it might return and it would be useless to say that it was a great relief to the passengers when their train finally rolled in.

CHAPTER XIX.

A Trip by Night and a Late Arrival.

Shortly after sundown that evening, the Rushcroft company evacuated Hart's Tavern. They were delayed by the irritating and, to Mr. Rushcroft, unpardonable behavior of two officious gentlemen, lately arrived, who insisted politely but firmly on prying into the past, present and future history of the several members of the organization, including the new "backer."

Barnes had devised a very clever plan for getting Miss Cameron away from the tavern without attracting undue attention. She was to leave in one of the automobiles that he had engaged to convey the players to Crowndale, where they were to "show." In case of detention or inquiry, she was to pose as a stage-struck young woman who had obtained a place with the company at the last moment through his influence.

When the hour came for the departure from Hart's Tavern he deliberately engaged the two secret service men in conversation in the taproom. Miss Cameron left the house by the rear door and was safely ensconced in Peter's automobile long before he shook hands with the "rat-catchers" and dashed out to join her. Tommy Gray's car, occupied by the four players, was moving away from the door as he sprang in beside her and slammed the door.

Peter's efforts to stay behind Tommy's venerable but surprisingly energetic car were the cause of many a gasp and shudder from the couple who sat behind him in the bounding car. He had orders to keep back of Tommy but never to lose sight of his tail light.

"Are you there?" he whispered. "Yes. Isn't it jolly, running away like this? It must be wonderfully exciting to be a criminal, always dodging and—"

"Sh! Even a limousine may have ears!"

But if the limousine had possessed a thousand ears they would have been rendered useless in the stormy racket made by Peter's muffler and the thunderous roar of the exhaust as the car got under way.

Sixty miles lay between them and Crowndale. Tommy Gray guaranteed that the distance could be covered in three hours, even over the vile mountain roads. Ten o'clock would find them at the Grand Palace hotel, none the worse for wear, provided (he always put it parenthetically) they lived to tell the tale! The luggage had gone on ahead of them earlier in the day.

"Isn't It Jolly, Running Away Like This?"

Soon after ten o'clock they entered the town of Crowndale and drew up before the unattractive portals of the Grand Palace hotel. An arc lamp swinging above the entrance shed a pitiless light upon the dreary, Godforsaken hostelry with the ironic name.

Miss Cameron was warmly conscious of the thrill that had come into her blood when he carried her up the stairs in his powerful arms, disdaining the offer of assistance from the suddenly infatuated Tommy Gray.

"Rehearsal at eleven sharp," announced Rushcroft. "Letter-perfect, every one of you. No guessing. By the way, Miss—er—pon my soul, I don't believe I got your name?"

"Jones," said the new member, shamelessly.

Barnes went down to the dingy lobby. A single, half-hearted electric bulb shed its feeble light on the desk, in front of which stood a man registering under the sleepy eye of the night clerk.

Barnes was turning away when a familiar voice assailed him.

Whirling, he looked into the face of a man who stood almost at his elbow—the sharp, impassive face of Mr. Sprouse.

CHAPTER XX.

The First Wayfarer Has One Treasure Thrust Upon Him—And Forthwith Claims Another.

"What are you doing here?" demanded Barnes, staring. He seized the man's arm and inquired eagerly: "Have you got the jewels?"

"No; but I will have them before morning," replied Sprouse coolly.

"Would you be surprised if I were to tell you that his royal nibs is hiding in this town? Well, he certainly is. The Baroness Hedlund has been here for a week or ten days. She goes by the name of Mrs. Hasselwein. I popped down here this afternoon and found out that she is at the sanatorium, but that she expects to leave tomorrow morning. I made another trip out there this evening and waited. About eight o'clock Mr. Hasselwein strolled up. He sat on the veranda with her for half an hour or so and then left. I followed him. He went to one of the little cottages that belong to the sanatorium. I couldn't get close enough to hear what they said, but I believe he expects to take her away in an automobile early in the morning. It is a seventy-mile ride from here to the junction where they catch the train for the West. I'm going up now to make a call on Mr. Hasselwein. By the way, what is the number of your room?"

"Twenty-two—on the next floor."

"Good. Go upstairs now and I'll join you in about ten minutes. I will tap three times on your door."

"Why should you come to my room, Sprouse? We can say all that is to be said—"

"If you will look on the register you will discover that Mr. J. H. Prosser registered here about half an hour ago. He is in room 30. He left a call for five o'clock. Well, Prosser is another name for Ugo. He left the cottage an hour ago. Came in a jitney or I could have got to him on the way over."

Barnes, regardless of consequences, dashed over to inspect the register. Sprouse followed leisurely.

"See!" cried Barnes, excitedly, putting his finger on the name "Miss Jones." "She's in room 32—next to his. By gad, Sprouse, do you suppose he knows that she is here? Would the dog undertake anything—"

"You may be sure he doesn't know she's here, or you either, for that matter. The country's full of Joneses and Barneses. Go on upstairs. Leave everything to me."

Barnes had been in his room for twenty minutes before he heard the tapping on his door. He opened it and Sprouse slid into the room. The instant the door closed behind him, he threw open his coat and coolly produced a long, shallow metal box, such as one finds in safety vaults.

"With my compliments," he said dryly, thrusting the box into Barnes' hands. "You'd better have the counters check them up and see if they're all there. I am not well enough acquainted with the collection to be positive."

Barnes was speechless. He could only stare, open-mouthed, at this amazing man.

"My God, Sprouse, have you been in that man's room since I saw you down—"

"All you have to do is to keep quiet and look innocent. Stay out of the hall tonight. Don't go near the door of No. 30. Act like a man with brains. I said I would square myself with you and with him, too. Well, I've done both. Maybe you think it is easy to give up this stuff. There is a half-million dollars' worth of nice little things in that box, small as it is."

"I cannot begin to thank you enough," said Barnes. "See here, you must allow me to reward you in some way commensurate with your—"

"Cut that out," said Sprouse darkly. "I'm not so virtuous that I have to be rewarded. I like the game. It's the breath of life to me."

"The time will surely come when I can do you a good turn, Sprouse, and you will not find me reluctant," said Barnes, lamely.

"That's different. If I ever need a friendly hand I'll call on you. It's only fair that I should give you a tip, Barnes, just to put you on your guard. From now on, I'm a free agent. I want to advise you to put that stuff in a safe place. I'll give you two days' start. After that, if I can get 'em away from you, or whoever may have them, I'm going to do it. They will be fair plunder from then on. Good night—and good-by for the present. Stick close to your room till morning and then beat it with her for New York. I give you two days' start, remember."

He switched off the light suddenly. There was no sound for many seconds, save the deep breathing of the two men. Then, with infinite caution, Sprouse turned the knob and opened the door a half inch or so. He left the room so abruptly that Barnes never quite got over the weird impression that he squeezed through that slender crack, and pulled it after him!

Many minutes passed before he turned on the light. The key of the box was tied to the wire grip. With trembling fingers he inserted it in the lock and opened the lid. . . . "A half-million dollars' worth of nice little things," Sprouse had said!

He did not close his eyes that night. Daybreak found him lying in bed, with the box under his pillow, a pistol at hand, and his eyes wide open. He was in a graver quandary than ever. Now that he had the treasure in his possession, what was he to do with it?

He gained wide recognition as a contributor of poems to leading periodicals and was considered a pioneer in Indiana dialect verse.

He is survived by two sons, Arthur S. Hopkins, of Louisville, and Edwin Hopkins of New York.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study with his patients.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually at 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results.

Tired, Nervous Women What You Need is Vinol

The reason we recommend Vinol so strongly for such conditions is because it is a non-secret remedy which contains Beef and Cod Liver Peptones, Iron and Manganese Peptonates and Glycerophosphates, the very elements needed to build up a run-down system and replace weakness with strength.

Glasgow Jct., Ky.

"I was suffering from a nervous breakdown—loss of flesh and poor appetite so I could hardly drag around and do the work for my family. My doctor prescribed Vinol. It not only made me well and strong but I have gained in weight."—Mrs. S. M. Gray.

Milwaukee, Wis.

"I was weak, nervous, all run down, no appetite and had taken different medicines without benefit. A friend advised me to try Vinol. It gave me a wonderful appetite, I sleep well, have gained in weight and am now strong and well."—Mrs. E. Strey.

For all run-down, nervous, anaemic conditions, weak women, overworked men, feeble old people and delicate children, there is no remedy like Vinol.
